Part III DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112-

1. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1-21 are replete with indefiniteness for not clearly claiming the subject. Specifically, claim terminology such as "the subject" is indefinite for not clearly claiming the subject. Some examples (which is not an exhaustive listing of all indefinite phrases) are cited next. Regarding claims 1-21, the phrases "the steps", "the player", "the data", "the gaming piece", "the game", "the processor", "the outcome", "the code", "the method", and "the system" are indefinite for not clearly claiming the subject. The examiner also suggests to the Applicant that the phrase "the game" is not clearly linked to a "lottery type game".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --
(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

3. Claims 18 and 20-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(a) as being anticipated by Clapper, Jr ('975). Clapper discloses a system for playing a lottery game (pull-tab) comprising a "game piece" (Fig. 5) "including a predetermined code which includes data indicating whether the player wins or loses the game, the data being unrecognizable to the player, such that the player does not know the outcome of the game prior to play of the game;

Paper No. 4

a processor for receiving said code; said processor being operable to control the outcome of the game based upon said code; and a display for providing an indication to the player of a game win or a game loss based upon said code" (Fig. 1, ref. 14, Fig. 5, ref. 56, column 5, lines 42-49, column 7, lines 31-54 and column 8, lines 17-24 and 37-42) (claim 18), "said gaming piece includes laser optical media for storing said code" (Fig. 5, ref. 56, column 7, lines 19-30) (claim 20), "said gaming piece includes a paper media for storing said code" (Fig. 5) (claim 21).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (E) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

5. Claims 1, 3-4, 6, 8, 10, 12-13, and 15-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Clapper, Jr. ('975) in combination with Koza ('324) and Heidel. Clapper discloses the features of the instant invention per se except "entering the code by the player into a processor" (claim 1), "the processor presenting a game of chance to the player on a display for interactive play by the player, the player controlling game play by inputting game parameters to the processor" (claims 1 and 10), and "entered by the player" (claim 1), "game of chance includes a card game" (claims 6 and 15).

Regarding "entering the code by the player into a processor" (claim 1) and "entered by the player" (claim 1), Clapper discloses the code being scanned automatically in order to automate the process of the processor reading and interpreting the code for display (column 7, lines 19-33, and column 8, lines 48-52). It is known in the art that automated processes may be accomplished manually. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the "entering the code by the player into a processor" into Clapper's method in order for a player to scan the barcode manually into Clapper's processor.

Regarding claims 1 and 10, Koza discloses "the processor presenting a game" "to the player on a display for interactive play by the player, the player controlling game play by inputting game parameters to the processor" (Figs. 1-6, column 2, lines 37-452, column 3, lines 10-68, column 4, lines 1-60, column 5, lines 17-20, 39-68), but does not disclose the video game being played being a game "of chance". While further regarding claims 1 and

10 and regarding claims 6 and 15, Heidel discloses a video lottery terminal which permits games of chance such as blackjack to be played (Figs. 1, 2a-2d). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the playing games "of chance" as taught by Heidel with Koza's system in order to add to the excitement of playing a video game by playing a game of chance such as a card game of video poker. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine "the processor presenting a game of chance to the player on a display for interactive play by the player, the player controlling game play by inputting game parameters to the processor" as taught by Koza in the combination with Heidel with Clapper's apparatus in order to increase the excitement of playing a lottery game by providing the player with the "amusement and entertainment of a video game while at the same time playing the lottery thus having the opportunity to win a lottery prize" (Koza, column 2, lines 37-40).

6. Claim 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Clapper, Jr in combination with Bergeron ('666). Clapper discloses the features of the instant invention per se except "includes magnetic media for storing said code". Bergeron discloses a system using magnetic media for storing data (Fig. 1). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made for the game pieces in

Art Unit: 3304

Clapper's method to be combined with "includes magnetic media for storing said code" as taught by Bergeron.

7. Claims 2 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Clapper, Jr. ('975) in combination with Koza ('324) and Heidel as applied to claims 1 and 10 above, respectively, and further in view of Bergeron ('666). Clapper in combination with Koza ('324) and Heidel discloses the features of the instant invention per se except "includes magnetic media for storing said code". Bergeron discloses a system using magnetic media for storing data (Fig. 1). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made for the game pieces in Clapper's method to be combined with "includes magnetic media for storing said code" as taught by Bergeron.

8. Claims 5 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Clapper, Jr. ('975) in combination with Koza ('324) and Heidel as applied to claims 1 and 10 above, respectively, and further in view of Wilson. Clapper in combination with Koza and Heidel discloses the features of the instant invention per se except "game of chance includes a horse race". Horse racing is a well known game of chance. Wilson discloses an interactive video horse-racing game. Koza as stated above discloses the combining of playing a video game with lottery. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine "game of chance includes a horse race" as disclosed by Wilson with Clapper's apparatus in combination Koza and Heidel in order to increase the excitement of playing a lottery game by providing the player with the "amusement and entertainment of a video game while at the same time playing the lottery thus having the opportunity to win a lottery prize" (Koza, column 2, lines 37-40).

9. Claims 9 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Clapper in combination with Koza and Heidel as applied to claims 1 and 10 above, respectively, and further in view of Bergeron et al. Clapper in combination with Koza and Heidel discloses the features of the instant invention per se except "includes a processor within an on-line subscription service". Koza further discloses the video game amusement terminals (20) being remote from a central controller (24). Bergeron et al discloses a system which "includes a processor within an on-line subscription service" (Figs. 5-7). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine "includes a processor within an on-line subscription service" as taught by Bergeron with Clapper's apparatus in combination with Koza and Heidel in order to increase the excitement of playing a lottery game by providing the player with the "amusement and entertainment of a video game while at the same time playing the lottery thus having the opportunity to win a lottery prize" (Koza, column 2, lines 37-40).

and the on-line subscription service permitting the playing of lottery combined with video games in the luxury of ones home.

Allowable Subject Matter

10. Claim 7 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection under 35 U.S.C. 112 and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Raven discloses a gaming machine information, communication and display system. Snowden discloses a player operated win checker connected to an agent terminal. Scagnelli et al discloses a computerized lottery wagering system. Gumina discloses interactive games and method of playing. Eberhardt et al discloses a video lottery system with improved site controller and validation unit. Wells discloses a method and apparatus for random play of lottery games. Kapur discloses a card-activated point-of-sale lottery terminal. Walker discloses an interactive telephone lottery system with a verification code. Entenmann discloses use of telecommunications systems for lotteries. Muller discloses high security instant lottery using bar codes. REMARKS

This application has been carefully reviewed in light of the Office Action mailed January 31, 1996 and the telephone conversation with Examiner Sager on February 28, 1996. Claims 1, 5, 6, and 10-21 have been amended.

GL00132

Reconsideration and favorable action in this application is respectfully requested.

Claims 1-21 have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 112, second paragraph. Claims 1, 5, 6, and 10-21 have been amended to more clearly define the present invention, and it is respectfully submitted that Claims 1-21 are now in full compliance with 35 U.S.C. § 112, and are in condition for allowance.

Independent Claims 1 and 10 have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Clapper, Jr. in combination with Koza and Heidel. Independent Claim 18 has been rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102 as being anticipated by Clapper, Jr. Claims 1, 10, and 18 have been amended to more clearly define the present invention, and it is respectfully submitted that these claims are now in condition for allowance.

The present invention relates to a game and method in which a player acquires a gaming piece, such as for example, a ticket. The ticket includes encoded data or a code, unrecognizable to the player. The code determines whether the player will win or lose the game. The data is input by the player into a game processor which in turn generates an interactive game for play by the player. The actual play of the game by the player does not control whether the player will win or lose the game, since the outcome of the game is predetermined by the code on the gaming ticket. The processor manipulates the game in accordance with the code entered by the player prior to game play. In Applicant's game and method, the ticket can be obtained by a game player, and later used to play the game. The tickets have a "portability" feature in that play of the game is not dependent upon the time of acquisition of the ticket by a game player. The code encoded on the ticket is required to be input into the gaming processor by the game player prior to game play. The processor does not independently or randomly determine the outcome of the game, as this outcome is determined by the code input by the game player.

None of the cited references disclose or suggest a game or method of playing a game in which a code entered by the player prior to game play controls the outcome, win or loss, of the game. The Clapper, Jr. reference discloses the use of a bar code which merely identifies indicia printed on a strip. The bar code is used to display the strip indicia to a game player. The printed indicia on the strip determines whether the player wins or loses the game, and not the code. The bar code of the Clapper, Jr. reference is not entered by the player into a processor, nor is the bar code contained on a gaming piece required by a game player. The Clapper, Jr. game requires the ticket be stored in a gaming machine, which ticket is not independent of the gaming machine. In summary, the Clapper, Jr. reference use of a code is only to automate the display of the indicia printed on the ticket, which code does not control game win or loss. It is the indicia on the ticket which controls game win or loss, and not the code.

As acknowledged by the Examiner in paragraph 5 of the Office Action, Clapper, Jr. does not disclose the step or function of entering the code by the player into a processor, the processor presenting a game to the player on a display for interactive play by the player, or the player controlling game play by inputting game parameters entered by the player. It is therefore respectfully submitted that Claim 1 is clearly distinguishable over the Clapper, Jr. reference taken individually or in combination with Koza and Heidel.

Reference to Koza and Heidel does not cure the above noted deficiencies in Clapper, Jr. Koza does not disclose or suggest a game in which a player acquires a code on a gaming piece, and in which the code is input by the player. The Koza system does not utilize preprinted tickets as previously discussed with reference to Clapper, Jr. The Heidel reference merely discloses a blackjack game, and does not disclose or suggest the use of a player input code which controls the game outcome. It is therefore respectfully submitted that Claims 1, 10, and 18 clearly distinguish over the Clapper, Jr., Koza, and Heidel references taken individually or in combination, and the withdrawal of the rejection under 35 U.S.C. § 103 is respectfully requested.

Claims 2-9 depending from Claim 1; Claims 11-17 depending from Claim 10; and Claims 19-21, depending from Claim 18, further define the present invention, and it is respectfully submitted that these claims are also in condition for allowance.

For the foregoing reasons, full allowance of Claims 1-21 pending in this application is respectfully requested. If the Examiner has any questions regarding this amendment, the Examiner is respectfully requested to telephone the undersigned.

Respectfully submitted,

REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

3. The following is an Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance: the combination of acquiring a gaming piece that includes a "code which includes data indicating whether a player wins or loses the lottery game and an amusement game", where "the data being unrecognizable to the player, such that the player does not know whether the player will win or lose the games prior to play of the amusement game", the player playing the amusement game with a processor "controlling whether the player will win or lose the amusement game based upon the code entered by the player" and "providing an indication to the player of the amusement game win or loss based upon the code" appears novel and non-obvious over the prior art.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the Issue Fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the Issue Fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

4. Since allowable subject matter has been indicated, applicant is encouraged to submit formal drawings in response to this Office action. The early submission of formal drawings will permit the Office to review the drawings for acceptability and to resolve any informalities remaining therein before the application is passed to issue. This will avoid possible delays in the issue process.
